PRESS RELEASE N. 5

PRESS CONFERENCE PRESENTATION 6 JUNE 2018 11:30 AM

The 'Sea at 360 degrees' will be the undisputed protagonist of Seafuture. Analyse all aspects of the 'Maritime domain' to provide a business model that combines industry, science, technology and attention to the environment: this is the goal of Seafuture 2018.

Organized by Italian Blue Growth (IBG)¹ promoting company together with Italian Industries Federation for Aerospace, Defence and Security (AIAD)², the Region of Liguria and Blue Hub³ in cooperation with the Italian Navy, the Seafuture will take place from 19 to 23 June in the La Spezia Navy Base, Italy. The Seafuture is the essential event for those who live and work in contact with the 'Sea', aggregating all the Blue Economy's international actors. It is the only event dedicated to the naval vessels' upgrading and life-cycle management using the most sophisticated technologies available.

The event is taking place inside the 9,000 square meters of the historical sheds of the Italian Navy's 'Arsenal' base of La Spezia. Seafuture will be an opportunity of meeting and comparison for companies from all over the world, from Peru to India, as well as for international defence and security giants such as Fincantieri, Leonardo, MBDA, Naval Group and Thales. But the extraordinary success will be guaranteed by the presence of international delegations coming from 40 worldwide countries, who will have bilateral meetings with all the exhibitors.

The congress session will develop during the four days of the event, with wide-ranging conferences on the most varied aspects of the sea economy associated with seminars and workshops of high scientific profile, that will address the technical issues of maritime and naval domains and dual interest. All the protagonists will be united under the aegis of Seafuture to promote 'Blue Growth', the support strategy for sustainable growth indicated by the European Community.

Cristiana Pagni, President of IBG, and Rear Admiral Gianfranco Annunziata, Deputy Head of the Third Department of Italian Navy's Staff and event project officer will present the Seafuture 2018 edition during the press
